The Committee on Reconstruction still per sists in suppressing the most important festimony elicited before it. Dan Rice has recently been on a circus tour throughout the lately rebellious States, and has had opportunities such as afforded to few, for observing the condition of the Southern people as to layalty. His testimony will be found to show the true feeling that exists in the South when the thin crust of pretended loyalty is melted away and true character is revealed us under the exhilerating influence of a menagerie, when man of nature, separated therefrom only by the thin partition of an iron cage. Mr. Rice, being duly sworn, testified thus:

Q. You have an unruly animal, known as a pet mule, with your circus, have you not?

A. I have. Q. What are the idiosyncrasies of that beast? A. He is much given to kicking. Q. It is almost impossible to ride him, is it

A. It is. I generally offer $25 to any man who will ride him round the ring. Q. On your late visit to the South, did you receive any offer to ride that mule? A. I did. Q. State what occurred on these occasions. A. In Richmond, a discharged Confederate soldier attempted to ride him, but was immediately thrown flat on his back.

Q. What did the Confederate soldier say to A. He said the mule was a d-d Yankee

Q. Did any other make the attempt?

A. Another of Lea's veterans tried to ride him, and succeed d. Q. What did he say?

A. He said, after he had dismounted, that if he'd had a regiment o' them ere cavalry he'd have whipped Kilpatrick all to smash; and that in the next war against the Yankees he intended to raise a brigade of e'm. Cross-examined by Mr. Stevens:

Q. Is that a he mule, or a she mule? A. It's a he mule.

Q. You have monkeys in your show, have you not? A. I have.

Q. Have you ever heard any disloyal remarks in relation to the monkeys? A. I can't say that I have.

Q. Have you ever heard anything said in their presence?

A. A couple of young ladies were one day standing in front of the cage, and I heard one of them say it looked like a Freedmen's Bu-

Q. How was the remark received? A. It created much laughter.

Q. Were there any personal allusions made on that occasion? A. Some of the crowd said, pointing to the orang outang, "That's Sumner."

Q. Did that please the bystanders? A. Very much. Q. Didyou ever hear any observations about

A. I heard it said once about a one-eyed bear that he looked like Ben. Butler, and about as grizzly that it ought to be called Ben. Wade.

Q. Were the points of resemblance stated? A. They were not. The observation was made on the tout ensemble, with special reference, pernaps, to the occular deformity in the case of the one-eyed animal. Q. Have you side shows with your circus? A. I have.

Q. State if you ever heard any disloyal remarks in relation to them? A. I believe I heard something of the kind once about Daniel in the lion's den.

Q. State what it was? A. A young lady asked me which was Daniel and which was the hon. Q. What was your reply?

A. I told her it was easy to distinguish Daniel from the lion, as the former wore a swallow-tail coat, and had a cotton umbrella under his arm. Q. What did she say?

A. After looking into the cage she said, very spitefully, that Daniel looked like a mean yankee, and she wished the lion would chaw him up .- Cin. Commercial.

-+-Terrible Sublime Spectacle.

A Column of Fire One Thousand Feet in Height, and a River of Flame Thirty fice Miles Long.

A jet of lava of more stupendous proportions than any ever conceived of, is described by Mr. Coan in the Hot olulu Friend, of Febreary, in his account of the eruption of Manua Loa, on the Island of Hawaii:

The eruption commenced near the summit appointed at a future day. of the mountain, and only five or six miles southeast of the eruption in 1843. For two days this summit crater sent down its burning floods along the northeastern slope of the mountain; then suddenly the vale closed, and the great furnace apparently ceased blast. After thirty-six hours the fusia was seen bursting out of the eastern side of the mountain, about milway from the top of the base.

It would seem that the summit lava had found a subtervanean tunnel, for half way down the mountain, when coming to a weak point, or meeting with some obstruction, it burst up vertically, sending a column of incandescent fusia one thousand feet high into the gir. This fire jet was about one hundred feet in diameter, and it was sustained for twenty days and nights, varying in height from one hundred to a thousand feet. The disgorgement from the mountain side was often with terrific explosions, which shook the hills, and with detonations which were heard for forty miles. This column of liquid fire was an object of surpassing brilliancy, of intense and awful grandeur. As the jet issued from the awful orifice it was at white heat. As it assended higher it reddened like fresh blood, deepening its color, until in its descent much of it assumed the color of clotted gore. In a few days it had raised a cone some three hundred feet high around the burning orifice, and as the showers of burning minerals fell in livid torrents upon the cone, and quivering with restless action, and sending out it become one vast heap of glowing coals, flashing the heat of ten thousand furnaces in full blast. The struggles in disgorging the fiery masses, the upward rush of the column. the force which raised it one thousand vertical feet, and the continuous falling back of thousands of tons of mineral fusia into the throat of the crater, and over a cone of glowing minerals, one taile in circumference, was a sight to inspire awe and terror, attended with explosive shocks which seemed to rend the mural ribs of the mountain, and sound to least-a man who has "listened to the voice From this fountain a river of fire went rushing and leaping down the mountain with dashing over precipices, and exploding rocks mountain, where it burned its flery way, consuming the jungle, evaporating the water of

Had the fountain played ten days longer, it would probably have reached the shore. ----+---EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS—THE PRESIDENT'S FRIENDS TO RECEIVE THE PREFERENCE - Within a few days past a great change is noticeable in the matter of the Executive appointments. The President seems to have realized that longer forbearance with the enemies of his administration and its measures was working rank injustice to his friends, and to have realized the potency of the old party maxim that "to the victors belong the spoils." As a consequence, the Radicals, who mustered effrontery enough to call upon the President and solicit appointments for their friends, received little reward for their labors, and were treated to a plain exposition of his intentions for the future. They were told in language decisive and unmistakable that his friends should have the preference, and that no known enemy of the administration policy should receive the quasi endorsement of a Federal appointment. In addition to this, the axe has actually been set to work, and decapitations are now of daily occurrence. Its effects are already visible in the altered and respectful deportment of more than one Radical opponent in both branches of Congress. Hereto- fais will soon be on the side of the Spinish Govtofore, when the President's private secretary ernment. He is met with the blandest of smiles and surrounded by crowds who protest against any rupture of the friendly relations that should exist between the President and Congress, and who vie with each other in bestowing attentions, uttering pretty speeches and deprecating the idea that they are or ever were in hostility to the Executive. But the work will go on. No one will be received by hollow pretences. Those officeholders who have abused their positions to vilify the President and disrupt the Republican party will be made to give way to better men. The bare manifestation of this resolve has already half accomplished its purpose.

THE PRESIDENT STRIKES A BLOW.-The latest news from the Capital informs us that the President has been aroused to action at last. He is resolved that offices in his gift shall not be filled by men who chiefly use their position to operate against him and his measures. But a few days ago he began the battle by removing several bitter Radical partisans from post offices, both in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and it is said that this is but the commencement of a reform that is intended to be thorough. It is the right move, if it be not too late to prevent many embarrassments that would have been avoided by earlier action. However, Andrew Johnson knows best, and he has doubtless had good reasons for his delay in this matter. To meet this manœuver of the Executive, the Senate proposes a provision to prevent any appointee from receiving any pay or emolument until he is confirmed by its approval. This is an unprecedented and audacions innovation, if not passengers. a usurpation, and it remains to be seen if it will effectually checkmate the President.
